

Intranasal RSV Vaccine Clinical Trial for Toddlers and Preschoolers

We want to learn if an experimental respiratory syncytial virus, or RSV, nasal vaccine (delivered to your nose as a spray) is safe and could offer protection against RSV disease. RSV is a common respiratory virus that can be very serious for infants, children and older adults. It is one of the leading causes of hospitalization for infants and children.

WHO

Healthy children 12 months to 30 months old.

Contact Us

Ecc.vaccine@emory.edu
404-727-4044

STUDY DETAILS

- 6-12 planned visits over 1-2 years
- Compensation for your time

EMORY
UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Vaccine Research Clinic
Department of Pediatrics